SCENE #1

ACT. SCENE #1

Tonight, Fannie and Job are giving their guests, the Washins, a tour. They come across a well on the way to the barn.

JACOB

And this, of course is the source of

MR. WASHIN

What?

(FANNIE)

It's not well.

JACOB

Well, the times we had here, standing up, getting water, my well.

(FANNIE)

("What are you talking about?")

Also digging the water, don't forget about that.

JACOB

You know, I can't say if this really happened, but a young girl's first kiss might have taken place
leaning against the stone edge here, leaning shade under this two hundred year old timber. And,
young love, the open fields, a house elevated with sustenance.
You can't find that in the city.

Fannie gets what he is doing.

(FANNIE)

The house, that does sound idyllic.

JACOB

Yes, here.

(FANNIE)

But I think remember my first kiss
